Section B 段落匹配

Directions: 阅读下列段落，为每个句子选出所对应的段落。每个段落可能被选一次、多次或不被选择。

A The first thing you notice in the staircase to the fourth-floor studio on Canal Street in Manhattan,New York,is the measured thumping(嘭嘭声)coming from behind a metal door.Just beyond the entrance,large lion masks were twisting and turning to the drum-beat.On a recent Friday evening,the teenagers made their way across the studio floor as they practiced Chinese lion dancing.

B “You want to play in a circle,” Victor Fong,aged 24,told his students at the New York Chinese Freemasons Athletic Club. “Take it slow and do it again.” The dance group, made up of 60 members,performs throughout the year but was now preparing for its biggest events,Chinese Lunar New Year celebrations,which will begin on Saturday and conclude on February 15.Teenagers comprise about half of the group,many of whom began lion dancing at the age of 14.About 100 current and past members of the dance group—which has been performing since 1956—will be among the 220 groups marching through Chinatown in Manhattan for the 18th Lunar New Year Parade on February 5.

C Mr.Fong has been involved in the organization since he was 15 and began teaching lion dancing three years ago.But the club also acts as a recreation center and safe haven (庇 护所) for teenagers,with video games readily available.As many as 20 students show up after school. “The basic requirement for hanging out here is you have to learn how to lion dance,” Mr.Fong said.While that is not a formal requirement for being a member, everyone finds a way to participate in the Lunar New Year Parade,whether it's by dancing,carrying a flag or beating a drum.

D Alvin Chau,aged 26,is an environmental consultant by day and a lion dancer on weekends.He has been a club member for 10 years and joined because of an interest in lion dance. “We're a big family,” he said,shaking hands with other members as they walked through the door. “You know everyone.”

E It is believed that the lion dance began in the third century.Stories vary about how lion dancing came to be,but most of them include a monster named Nian who would terrorize a village.The villagers finally banded together and scared the beast away with firecrackers (爆竹)and drums.While lions are not native to China,some versions of the story include the villagers creating a monster of their own in the shape of a lion to fight off the beast.

F Today,the dancers travel across Chinatown going from business to business to bring good luck for the coming year.The new year—ac cording to the Chinese lunar calendar—will begin on Saturday and marks the Year of the Rooster(鸡年),which is thought to be a symbol of positivity."It's almost like the dark night is ending and the sun is coming up,"said Ya Yung Teng,the digital collections coordinator for the Museum of Chinese in America. “It's hopeful that we're going to have a new day.” Roosters and chickens are not particularly strong creatures,Ms.Teng said,but they are numerous. “In away,” she said,the rooster. “stands for ‘We the People.”

G The lion head and tail are operated by two people.As one person controls the head,a second follows under a train of fabric representing the body.The dancers move in harmony as they imitate the animal's natural movements in the wild,including the aggressiveness of an attack.A lion head figure weighs under 10 pounds and sits squarely on the dancer's shoulders.Inside,the dancer manipulates strings that open and close the lion's eyes,shake its ears and open its mouth to reveal a fire-orange tongue.

H “A good lion dancer will imitate a living creature,” said Karlin Chan,aged 59,who heads the athletic club's community public relations."I started lion dancing when I was a kid,” he said. “Chinatown was much,smaller then and it was a celebration with fireworks and firecrackers,which added a lot of flavor and meaning to it.”

I Mr.Chan buys a new lion head each year when he travels to China.A head costs about $1,500. “If you want the good stuff,the quality,you have to see it for yourself,” he said. “I'll inspect the product before we put it in the container and ship it over.” Mr.Chan, who has been involved with the club for nearly 50 years,said that passing the dance from one generation to the next was vital. “You need to pass on the traditions and the culture,and this is a part of our culture,"he said. “It's a great way to promote cultural understanding and exchange;we welcome that.”

J For Sara Pore,aged 17,another club member,lion dance is more than just tradition;it provides a creative outlet. “Lion dancing started 2,000 years ago—that's incredible,” she said. “But what makes you a competent lion dancer is that there's a sense of imagination involved.Lion dancing teaches competence in leadership because of this. You're constantly forced to push yourself past your limit.”

K Back at rehearsal(排练),Just in Le,aged 18,tied a red ribbon around his waist to practice jumping.The dancers use the ribbons to pull themselves up over their partners'heads.The room's ceilings are too low to wear the lion heads for jumping practice,so once up on his partner's head,Mr.Le held out his arms as if in offering.

L Mr.Le comes by the dance as a legacy(传承). “I was born into it,” Mr.Le said,noting that his uncle and father were club members. “Growing up,I would always watch my family and see the lion dance,and I slowly grew interested in it."By the age of 14,he was fully enrolled in the athletic club's lion dance group."I value my culture and tradition,being Chinese or Asian-American.I have a lot of pride in that,"he said. “I want to contribute and give back to the community.”

Section C 阅读理解

Passage One

Team-building exercises have become popular for managers trying to increase organisational and team harmony and productivity.Unfortunately many employees resent compulsory bonding and often regard these exercises as a nuisance.

A paper published this week by University of Sydney researchers in Social Networks has reported participants'feelings about team-building interventions (干预),revealing ethical implications in forcing employees to take part.

“Many people see team-building activities as a waste of time,so we decided to look in more depth at what's behind this,"said the paper's lead researcher,Dr Peter Matous.

“Teams are formed,combined and restructured.Staff are relocated and office spacesredesigned.All this is done with the aim of improving workplace efficiency,collaboration and cohesion.But does any of this work?"said Dr Matous.

The study found that team-building exercises which focused on the sharing of and intervening into personal attitudes and relationships between team members were considered too heavy-handed and intrusive,although the researchers say some degree of openness and vulnerability is often necessary to make deep,effective connections with colleagues.

“Some participants were against team-building exercises because they were implicitly compulsory.They didn't welcome management's interest in their lives beyond their direct work performance,” said Matous. “Many people don't want to be forced into having fun or making friends,especially not on top of their busy jobs.They feel management is being too nosy or trying to control their lives too much.”

In this study the researchers recommended a self-disclosure(表露)approach where participants were guided through a series of questions that allowed them to increasingly disclose personal information and values.The method is well-tested and has been shown to increase interpersonal closeness.However,to be successful it must be voluntary.

The researchers said there are numerous schools of thought that propose differing psychological methods for strengthening relationships."With caution,many relational methods to improve teams and organisations can be borrowed from other fields.The question is how to apply them effectively to strengthen an entire collective,which is more than just the sum of individual relationships,"said Dr Matous.

1. Why are many employees opposed to team-building exercises?
   A. They consider such exercises annoying.
   B. They deem these exercises counter-productive.
   C. They see such exercises as harmful to harmony.
   D. They find these exercises too demanding.
2. What did Dr Matous and his team do to find out whether team-building activities would improve productivity?
   A. They relocated team leaders and their offices.
   B. They rearranged the staff and office spaces.
   C. They redesigned the staff's work schedules.
   D. They reintroduced some cohesive activities.
3. What did the study by Matous'team find about some team-building exercises?
   A. They were intended to share personal attitudes and relationships.
   B. They implicitly added to the vulnerability of team members.
   C. They invariably strengthened connections among colleagues.
   D. They were regarded as an intrusion into employees'private lives.
4. How can the self-disclosure approach succeed in increasing interpersonal closeness?
   A. By allowing participants freedom to express themselves.
   B. By applying it to employees who volunteer to participate.
   C. By arranging in proper order the questions participants face.
   D. By guiding employees through a series of steps in team building.
5. What does Matous think of the various psychological methods borrowed from other fields for strengthening relationships?
   A. They must be used in combination for an entire collective.
   B. They prioritise some psychological aspects over others.
   C. They place too much stress on individual relationships.
   D. They have to be applied cautiously to be effective.

Passage Two

There are close to 58,000 homeless people in Los Angeles county.That's a shocking and tragic number for a region that's home to some of the richest people in the world.At last,the problem became so acute—and so visible—that Los Angeles took extraordinary action.The citizens of this county voted in November 2016 and again in March 2017 to raise their own taxes.The purpose of such action is to fund an enormous multibillion-dollar, 10-year program of housing and social services for the homeless.

As a result,Los Angeles now has its best chance in decades to combat homelessness. This is an opportunity that surely all can agree must not be wasted.It is neither desirable nor morally acceptable nor practical for this county to tolerate the signs of deprivation more commonly associated with the slums(贫民窟)of Rio de Janiero.

How did we get here?For as long as there are homeless people,there is a tendency to blame the victims themselves for their condition—to see their failure to thrive as an issue of character,of moral weakness,of laziness.But contrary to popular belief,the homeless in Los Angeles are not mostly mentally ill or drug addicted or frightening,although a sizable minority meet some of those descriptions.Today,a greater and greater proportion of people living on the streets are there because of bad luck or a series of mistakes,or because the economy forgot them—they lost a job or were evicted(逐出)or fled an abusive marriage just as the housing market was growing increasingly unforgiving.

The challenges are enormous,even if everyone is pulling in the same direction.That reality was driven home this month by a new Los Angeles Homeless Services Authority report showing that the county's homeless population is growing faster than the supply of new housing

In the world's richest nation,homelessness on this scale should be shameful and shocking.But most Los Angeles residents are no longer either shocked or shamed.

Increasingly,we are uncomfortable,annoyed,disgusted,scared or unaware.Compassion(同情心)is being replaced by resignation.

1. Why did the citizens of Los Angeles vote to raise their own taxes?
   A. To combat the county's homelessness.
   B. To reform the county's service system.
   C. To fund the development of local infrastructure.
   D. To narrow the gap between the rich and the poor.
2. What do people tend to believe about the homeless?
   A. They seldom meet the descriptions of homelessness.
   B. They are the victims of fast economic development.
   C. They are responsible for their own condition.
   D. They account for the majority of drug addicts.
3. What is one of the causes for more and more people in Los Angeles to become homeless?
   A. They find it increasingly difficult to afford a place to live.
   B. The divorce rate in the county has been on a steady rise.
   C. They have been compelled to take low-paying jobs.
   D. The society fails to forgive them for their mistakes.
4. What do we learn from the new Los Angeles Homeless Services Authority report?
   A. Supplying enough job opportunities for the homeless remains a challenge.
   B. Everyone is pulling in the same direction to solve the homelessness problem.
   C. The increase in new housing falls short of the demand of the growing homeless population.
   D. Los Angeles'homeless condition is deteriorating faster than many people predict.
5. How do most Los Angeles residents now feel about homelessness?
   A. They are increasingly ashamed about its scale.
   B. They find it no more scaring than it appears.
   C. They are less and less indifferent to it.
   D. They no longer find it shocking.

news reports. At the end of each news report, you'll hear two or three questions. Both the news report and the questions we spoken only once. After you hear a question, you must choose the best News report won.

Police have reported a man being bitten by a four-foot snake when he lifted his toilet seat on Sunday morning.
The snake was not poisonous, so the man did not have to go to the hospital, but his arm was medically treated at the scene.
The police officer interviewed, told news reporters,
the snake didn't belong to the man,
and it was unclear how it got into the apartment.
This snake was eventually captured by the local animal handlers and taken to an animal hospital afterward.
It was being treated for an outer skin infection.
It was unclear who the owner was.
The snake may be taken to a local zoo for care if the owner does not come forward.
Over the years other creatures like frogs and fish have found their way into toilets.
But this was the first instance of a snake in recent years.
Questions 1 and 2 are based on the news report you have just heard.
Question 1.
What do we learn from the police report?
Question 2.
What does the reports say were still unclear?
News report too.
Every week since last April, Andrea Belcher has been doing something slightly unusual and amusing when she takes out her trash.
It all started off when a movie star shared a photo of herself putting her trash bins out in a ball gown. This inspired Andrea to get dressed up to take out the trash. She was too embarrassed to do it during the day, so one dark evening she put on her black off the shoulder gown and put her trash bin out, her daughter filmed it and the whole family laughed, but seemed to go down well. The following weeks she found other outfits in her dressing up box, and dressed up as different characters and famous people, sharing her exploits on social media. Before long, people started offering up their own fancy dresses for her to wear. And before she knew it, she had done 20 weeks. Explaining why she has kept up the videos, Andrea explain how nice it was to have a little bit of fun and craziness that made people smile.
Besides, it also helps to remind people in the community to put out their trash bins each week.
Questions 3 and 4 are based on the news report you have just heard.
Question 3. What has Andrea Belcher been doing since last April?
Question 4. Why has Andrea Belcher kept up her videos?
New Support 3.
No Money, but Still Hungry?
No Problem.
Welcome to Frank's Restaurant, where customers are paying for meals and leaving receipts on a board.
Anyone who is hungry and wants something to eat can take one, no questions asked, and hand it to the staff for some food.
The idea for the board of free meals started after a donor came in with $100 for each member of its staff.
After two staffers returned their share, there was $700 left over, according to Terra Morris, the owner of the restaurant.
So they decided to do something more by creating the board.
The Board of Free Meals inside the restaurant shows a host of potential meals already paid for by customers, each costing about $10.
The Board has messages of kindness, like if you want more kindness in the world, put it here.
The drive has been going on for two weeks, and more is said, just under 50 customers have picked up a free meal.
There have been no reports of anyone taking advantage of the situation.
In fact, there are a lot more people giving tickets than receiving.
It seems people want to help and are driven by helping others.
Questions 5-7 are based on the news report you have just heard.
Question 5.
What can people do at Fring's restaurant?
Question 6. What does the owner of the restaurant say about the idea for the board of free meals?
Question 7. What has happened at Frank's restaurant since the board of free meals was created?

Section B, Directions. In this section you will hear two long conversations. At the end of each conversation, you will hear four questions, both the conversation and the questions will be spoken only once.
After you hear a question, you must choose the best answer from the four choices, marked A, B, C, and D. Then mark the corresponding letter on answer sheet 1 with a single Conversation 1 Welcome to our program, Friends and Relationships.

Our guest today is psychologist Steve Pinker from McGill University.
Glad to be here, Jane.
Hi Steve.
Our question today is why friends suddenly disappear?
They may block us on their social media accounts and stop responding to our emails.
They simply vanish without a trace.
The answer may lie in childhood.
The way the person related to their mum and dad.
It's related to their attachment styles.
Attachment styles?
Yeah, there are two different attachment styles.
an anxious attachment style and an avoidant attachment style. When there is a relationship breakdown with their parents, children with an anxious attachment style screen and cry to get their parents to come back. But other children simply shut down and try to deal with their emotions by ignoring the situation. And these attachment styles carry on into adulthood.
Does avoidance reduce their stress levels?
Not really, their stress levels are actually the same as those experienced by the children who yell and scream.
And I assume both might be termed insecure.
Exactly. And it's a very insecure attachment.
How does an insecure attachment affect relationships between friends, co-workers, and romantic relationships?
It's the same as conflicts. So if you have a disagreement with a securely attached person, they're not going to panic. They're able to hear what the other person is saying and express their own feelings and thoughts effectively.
However, an insecurely attached person won't. They might either attack you, get defensive, or just disappear from your life.
To them, a different no matter how small in your eyes signals the end of the relationship.
That explains why they suddenly disappear.
Question 8-11, a base on the conversation you have just heard. Question 8, what do we learn about the man?
Question 9, what are the speakers mainly talking about?
Question 10. How do children with an anxious attachment style react to a breakdown in their relationship with parents?
Question 11. What does the man say about insecurely attached people?
I'm just going to be a little bit more nervous.
I'm just going to be a little bit more nervous.
Conversation 2.
I hear you're going to Japan soon.
Yes, that's right.
Could I ask you a favor?
Sure. What is it?
I was wondering if you could get me some jeans while you're there.
I'll pay you back of course.
A pair of jeans? Okay, I don't see why not. But what's wrong with jeans here?
Well, I just love good jeans and Japan happens to make the best in the world. My friend brought me a pair from their five years ago and they still look new.
Really, I had no idea Japan made jeans. I would have thought America made the best jeans because it's a typical American garment.
Yeah, I thought so too, but it turns out Japan still has some very old mills with the traditional weaving tools used to make genes the original way.
It's a slower process of making clothing, but the end result is surely superior.
Also, the fabric they use is of a higher quality and the dies unnatural. They have a denser weave and are more durable than any other genes in the world.
That sounds cool. What size do you want? And how much are they?
I have a 34-waste and size 30 or 32 in length. Either is fine. They should be around $500, but make double-sert and they are made in Japan.
$500, boy, that's expensive. Do you typically spend that much on a pair of casual trousers?

Passage 1. Every time I walk out of a superhero movie, I feel the same way. I experience a sense of longing, realizing that there should be more in life. The desire for adventure as a human one. Superhero films captured this desire perfectly. The plot of each superhero film has become relatively predictable. The world is in peril. The world needs a hero. The hero is in peril. The hero resolves the peril. The hero saves the world. Each film has an attractive lead. Several expensive explosions, a few jokes lighten the mood, and numerous punches that land unrealistically well. Even though we basically know what will happen, we keep coming back for more. The elites of our society have rejected superhero films. They say the films like any form of artistry. These movies are criticised as being too simple, but they give the fans what they want. Entertainment. No matter the form in which they reveal themselves, hero stories will always be present in life. It's not just about being entertained, but also being inspired.
One author has mentioned that women desire to play an irreplaceable role in a great adventure.
Most young women want to be a part of something grand, something important. It seems clear that this principle applies to men as well. So next time you see your favourite superhero film, be entertained, but also be inspired. That that small longing you feel motivates you to make a difference.

Passage 2.
Telling stories is one of the most powerful means leaders have to influence, teach, and inspire.
Storytelling forges connections among people.
When it comes to our countries, our communities, and our families, we understand instinctively that the stories we hold in common are an important part of the ties that bind.
This understanding also holds true in the business world where in organizations' stories and the stories its leaders tell help solidify relationships in a way that factual statements don't.
Good stories do more than create a sense of connection.
They build familiarity and trust.
They allow the listener to enter the story, making them more open to learning.
Good stories can contain multiple meanings, so they're surprisingly economical, in conveying complex ideas in graspable ways.
And stories are more engaging than the recital of data points, or a discussion of abstract ideas.
Stories about professional mistakes, and what leaders learned from them are another great avenue for learning.
Because people identify so closely with stories, they can imagine how they would have acted in similar circumstances.
They are able to work through situations in a way that's risk-free.
There are extra benefits for leaders.
With a simple personal story, they can convey fundamental values.
They can offer insight into the evolution of their own experience and knowledge, presenting themselves as more approachable.
And then, they are more likely to inspire others to want to know more.
Question 20. What can good stories do to listeners according to the passage?
Question 21. What can leaders do with a simple personal story?
Passage 3 The US was founded by successive ways of immigrants and immigrants are still contributing to America today, statistics prove it.
On two key measures of financial performance, immigrants outperform native born Americans.
First, they're more likely to be entrepreneurs.
From 1996 to 2016, the pace at which immigrants started businesses was double that of US-born individuals.
Immigrants aren't just becoming entrepreneurs more frequently, they're often succeeding.
Over 40% of Fortune 500 companies had a founder who was either an immigrant or the child of one.
Another key measure of financial strength is debt level.
Immigrants do better in this area too.
Immigrants use credit less often for purchasing cars, homes or starting businesses.
This results in significantly lower levels of debt than native born Americans.
For example, 34% of Americans born in Latin America report no credit card or installment loan debt.
This can be compared to just 19% of the general population.
Why are immigrants doing so well?
The values and habits they bring from their own home lands help explain some of the success.
Unemployment tends to be higher in developing countries.
That means more people must become entrepreneurs.
Credit is also scarce in most developing countries.
This means individuals must save more in order to achieve their goals.
Or they borrow money from friends and family, rather than a bank.
That means less debt and potentially better credit outcomes when they reach the US.
