Section B 段落匹配

Directions: 阅读下列段落，为每个句子选出所对应的段落。每个段落可能被选一次、多次或不被选择。

A This fall,thousands of college students from across the country will begin their undergraduate studies at colleges around the nation.They will inevitably pack too much to fit in their tiny dorm rooms.They will also carry with them a huge student loan debt, in addition to countless "hidden" out-of-pocket costs paid for by their bank accounts and the bank accounts of their families.

B At my well-respected,private,four-year university in Washington,D.C.,which boasts a yearly tuition of $44,046 not including room and board,I receive over $57,000 yearly in financial aid.As a student from a family that is struggling to make ends meet,my financial aid package is a combination of federal grants and federal work study, university merit scholarships and financial aid awards,and about $8,000 yearly in federally subsidized(有补贴的)and unsubsidized loans.On paper,my expenses and my financial aid just about even out.Off paper,they don't.

C Universities today are in the business of making money,and mine is no exception.They hit me right out of gate with a $160 fee to attend my freshman orientation,a price which does not include the cost of travel to and from the District.Almost every class has an associated fee not included in the cost of tuition,most between $40 and $100.Fees for lab science classes are the highest,and all students at my university are required to take at least one lab before they graduate.Buying a laptop proved a necessity and,thankfully, a relative bought me one as a gift.Renting a mini-fridge for my dorm room costs my roommates and me about $140 a year.

D Schools will charge you whatever they can.The costs of any damage to the dorm, including elevators,bathrooms,and common areas,are billed to every person on a dorm floor,or even the entire building if they do not know who caused the damage.After I fell out of my bed twice during my freshman year,the university installed a railing—for $20,billed to my student account.My financial aid did not anticipate any of these costs, and so it did not cover them.

E An Internet search of "hidden costs" of college turns up a host of articles on parent-centered websites on the college application process.These articles are almost always geared towards upper- and middle-class families.For students already struggling to pay tuition,these costs may be the least of their worries.

F So what hidden costs should low-income students really be paying attention to?My college experience offers a few examples.

G If you are a low-income student who will be attending school out-of-state,make sure you know if you can use your state benefits,such as the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program,or SNAP.It wasn't until after I had accepted admission to an out-of-state school that I learned that I could not use my Ohio Medicaid on campus for anything other than emergency care.My benefits became invalid the second I moved out of Ohio.After my freshman year,I had to opt for the school's insurance plan,which costs around $2,000 a year.Even if your school offers a flat-rate fee for a doctor's appointment at the student health center (mine is $20 a visit),these fees often do not include extra fees for lab tests or prescription medications (药物).

H If you plan on paying off bills in your student account with a credit card,be aware of any additional costs.My school charges an additional fee for the use of a credit card to settle outstanding charges,which can add upwards of 3%of the balance to your bill.

I There is another depressing reality hidden within even the largest financial aid packages: Colleges often offer the most generous packages during freshman year as a way to attract new students.My family was careful to ask about the chances of financial aid being taken away after my freshman year.We were assured that,except for low grades or a raise in family income,no money would be taken away.We did not know to ask—and the school did not readily point out—that even if tuition rises,my financial aid package will stay the same.So when my university voted to raise tuition costs 3%at the end of my freshman year,my financial aid package remained the same and I was suddenly responsible for an additional $1,200 for the next year.The university administration will likely vote to raise costs at least once more before my graduation.

J Yes,I chose to attend an expensive university far from my hometown.Yes,there were cheaper options.But there are promising students from struggling families across the nation who should not rule out their dream schools entirely.All things considered,I am paying significantly less than the ticket price of my university,and having an educational experience in Washington,D.C.,that I would not have had anywhere else. As a low-income student from a down-and-out Rust Belt community,these educational experiences have enormous potential to brighten my future-and my family's future.

K The key is to make sure that students and their families understand that hidden costs exist,and that they may prove problematic.Fill out a more comprehensive checklist, and be wary of listed prices that seem too low.Understand just how complicated the financial aid process is.

L Students and families must also understand their ability to self-advocate.They should not pay student bills or excess fees blindly.If something does not look right,ask about it.If it still doesn't look right,negotiate it.In cases where parents are working multiple jobs,are less knowledgeable about college bureaucracies,have limited English language skills,or are not contributing financially to their child's education,the burden of self-advocacy will fall on the student.I understand the difficulty,and the embarrassment.But it is necessary.

M In the grand scheme of things,however,colleges also must come to understand that the hidden fees they ask for may prove unmanageable for the very kinds of low-income or first-generation students they are trying desperately to attract.

Section C 阅读理解

Passage One

To write his 2010 book,The 5-Factor World Diet,nutritionist Harley Pasternak traveled to the healthiest countries around the world to learn more about what made their meals extra nourishing.

He noted that Japanese people ate a wonderful variety of seaweeds,and that Chinese people tried to include at least five different colors in every meal.Pasternak also came away with some valuable observations about how different the North American way of life was,compared with many other countries.

For starters,Americans eat much bigger portions than people in other countries. "We don't prioritize eating seasonally or locally,and we also add lots of salt,sugar and thickening agents to our foods," explained Pasternak.Contrast that to the healthy Mediterranean,Nordic and Okinawan diets listed in Pasternak's book.They all seem to stick to the ethos(特质)of regional,seasonal produce.

For example,a traditional Mediterranean diet includes fruits,vegetables,whole grains, nuts and olive oil as the main components of nutritional intake.Fish,chicken and red wine make moderate appearances,while red meat,salt and sugar are used much less often.The benefits of a traditional Mediterranean diet have been studied since the 1970s,and researchers have found that living that olive oil life can help people lose weight,lower their heart disease risk and reverse diabetes.

Most other healthy eating cultures also make meals an event—say,multiple courses around the family table,or a glass or two of red wine at a long lunch-as opposed to hastily wolfing down handfuls of cereal above the kitchen sink and calling it dinner.

Each of the healthy eating cultures has its own unique feature.But Pasternak did take note of one unifying factor in all of the healthy societies he observed."The only overlapping feature in most of these healthy countries is that they all walk way more than the average American," said Pasternak, "So really,regardless of what you're eating,if someone's walking four miles more than you each day,they're going to be a lot thinner and live a lot longer than you."

Passage Two

Recognizing when a friend or colleague feels sad,angry or surprised is key to getting along with others.But a new study suggests that being sensitive to people's feelings may sometimes come with an extra dose of stress.This and other research challenge the prevailing view that emotional intelligence is uniformly beneficial to its bearer.

In a study,psychologist Myriam Bechtoldt of the Frankfurt School of Finance and Management in Germany asked 166 male university students a series of questions to measure their emotional intelligence.For example,they showed the students photographs of people's faces and asked them to what extent feelings such as happiness or disgust were being expressed.The students then had to give job talks in front of judges who displayed serious facial expressions.The scientists measured concentrations of stress hormones in the students'saliva(唾液)before and after the talk.

In students who were rated more emotionally intelligent,the stress measures increased more during the experiment and took longer to go back to baseline.The findings suggest that some people may be too emotionally clever for their own good,says Bechtoldt. "Sometimes you can be so good at something that it causes trouble," she notes.

Indeed,the study adds to previous research hinting at a dark side of emotional intelligence.A study published in 2002 in Personality and Individual Differences suggested that emotionally perceptive people might be particularly influenced by feelings of depression and hopelessness.Furthermore,several studies have implied that emotional intelligence can be used to manipulate others for personal gains.

More research is needed to see how exactly the relation between emotional intelligence and stress would play out in women and in people of different ages and education levels.Nevertheless,emotional intelligence is a useful skill to have,as long as you learn to also properly cope with emotions—both others'and your own,says Bechtoldt. For example,some sensitive individuals may assume responsibility for other people's sadness or anger,which ultimately stresses them out.Remember,as Bechtoldt says, "you are not responsible for how other people feel."

1. What is the finding of the new study?
   - A. Emotional intelligence helps people get along with others.
   - B. Emotional intelligence is generally beneficial to its bearer.
   - C. People who are aware of others feelings may experience more stress.
   - D. People who are emotionally stressed may have trouble making friends.
2. What was the purpose of psychologist Myriam Bechtoldt's experiment?
   - A. To define different types of human feelings.
   - B. To assess the impacts of being emotionally clever.
   - C. To demonstrate how to distinguish different feelings.
   - D. To identify gender differences in emotional intelligence.
3. What does the finding of Myriam Bechtoldt's study indicate?
   - A. Greater emotional cleverness means less trouble in one's life.
   - B. Emotional intelligence helps people succeed in job interviews.
   - C. People's psychological wellbeing is related to various factors.
   - D. People may suffer from having a high emotional intelligence.
4. What do we learn about emotional intelligence from a number of studies?
   - A. People suffering from depression are emotionally immature.
   - B. People who look at the dark side of life often feel depressed.
   - C. Some people may take advantage of it and benefit themselves.
   - D. Some people may lack it and are easily manipulated by others.
5. What does the author suggest sensitive individuals do?
   - A. Avoid burdening themselves with others'feelings.
   - B. Rid themselves of worries over worldly affairs.
   - C. Learn to cope with people's negative feelings.
   - D. Help people to deal with their troubles in life.

suspended on Friday after a partial wall collapse at one of the mines dams. The wall collapse at the Kediomine came just a few days after two earthquakes hit the area.
The damage to the dam wall was noticed in the late afternoon on Friday when workers found a section of the northern dam wall had collapsed into the southern dam.
The dams contained waste products of mining and contained materials which are harmful to the environment and human health.
The dams are generally constructed using Earthville and are gradually raised over time.
The company was unable to confirm whether the recent earthquakes had contributed to the dam's wall collapse, citizens. They were in the operating room with five teams of doctors, one for each baby.

The first five babies were delivered successfully and all baby beds were occupied. And Then, all of a sudden, it turned out there was another waiting to come out.

They needed to stay in the hospital for two to three months for medical supervision.
The mother, who was in stable condition, could return home a day later if all physical

A Spanish island called Palma Dora has been bought by a family from Europe for 18 million euros.
The island is often described as heaven on earth by holiday makers.
For decades tourists have been flocking to Palma Dora, which is located off the southeast coast of Spain.
They come to enjoy its unspoiled beaches and crystal clear waters.
Its natural beauty is protected as it lies inside a natural park.
Although Paul Mador is one of the most famous private islands in the world, its seafront is public land and is a favorite destination for famous people.
When the island was put up for sale, it was offered to the local government but proved too expensive for the local authorities. It is unclear whether the new owners have the power to ban tourists from the island, but with their newfound luxury comes the responsibility new classes?

The same discount of 20% is being offered to everyone at the door on a first come first serve basis for the first month.
It's a shame you missed out on the general discount.
I see.

Which of the two classes are you thinking about?
Well I guess I am only really interested in hot yoga.
Can you sign me up for the 10 week course on Thursday evenings?

No, I don't like giving my card details over the phone anyway.

our research.
Okay, we've got a bit of spare time now.
Can we discuss the return trip to the head office?
Sure.
I've checked the availability of flights from Beijing to London on the 22nd, and you have a choice.
There's a flight arriving the following morning with a two-hour stopover in Dubai.
Or a flight arriving at 1130 in the evening with a five-hour stopover in Amsterdam.
Right, well, that's obvious then, isn't it?
Okay, so that's Dubai. I've booked a room in a hotel about a mile from the office.
The nearest metro station is Earl's Court.
Great. Can you find a map that shows where the hotel is and send it to me online?
I've never been to the head office, you know.
I want to see if I can get one of those rental bicycles and ride to the office just for fun.

Passage 1
A new study has demonstrated the importance of women's rights.
The researchers behind this study state that many parts of the world have made good economic progress, but women's rights are often overlooked.
Thus, they wanted to determine if there was a link between protection of women's rights and public health.
The researchers analyzed databases which held information from 162 countries for the period 2004 to 2010.
Countries were classified according to the respect they gave to women's economic and social rights.
There were three categories.
They were high, moderate, and poor.
Analysis of the data showed that countries with strong women's rights had better health
Then those were women's rights were not as respected.
The Health Indicators studied included disease prevention, reproductive health, death rates, and life expectancy.
Furthermore, in countries where women's rights were most respected, but where access to hospitals and doctors was below average, health outcomes were still better than in countries rated as moderate or poor.
This confirms that, even with a lack of resources, if a country has strong women's rights, the health outcomes are better.
Thus, the researchers argue that gender equality is not just a women's rights issue.
It is also a development issue.
This is because better health aids economic development.
They note that the value of women's rights has often been questioned from an economic standpoint.
Some have argued that ensuring those rights with limit progress, but this study indicates the opposite.

Passage to Sunshine and High temperatures can mean picnics and parks and trips to beaches, happening.

But there are a number of advantages of being left-handed.
Research found that they were overrepresented among fighters in combat sports.
Left-handed fighters also had higher chances to win.
This confirms the fighter theory.
Left-handers may also be better at remembering events.
The explanation is that the two brain spheres of left-handers are more strongly connected.
Being left-handed might be a factor in mathematical ability.
In Italian study found that for simple arithmetic there was little difference between right and left-handed performance. But for more difficult problems solving, left-handers won out.
No one understands the reason for this.
Left-handed people may think differently. In one study, researchers showed the participants callums of abstract illustrations and ask them which ones they would prefer.
Left-handed people were more likely to prefer the images on the left.
Right-handed people preferred the ones on the right.
Both groups disliked stuff on their opposite side.
