Many people believe that passion and commitment are the foundations of strong romantic relationships. But a relationship is made of two __26__ individuals. And the personality traits（特性）these individuals __27__ or lack can often make a relationship more-or less-likely to __28__. Recent research has found that one trait in particular-humility（谦逊）-is an important indicator of successful relationships.

Humility can sometimes be __29__ with a lack of confidence. But researchers have come to realize that being humble generally indicates the __30__ of deeply admirable personal qualities. Being humble means you have the ability to accurately __31__ your deficiencies without denying your skills and strengths. For example， you might recognize that you are intelligent， but realize that you are not a __32__. Thus， humility leads to an honest view of one's own advantages and shortcomings. Humble people do not ignore, avoid, or try to deny their limits or deficiencies. They can __33__ mistakes, see value in things that are far from perfect and identify areas for improvement.

Perhaps it is not __34__ , then, that humility appears to be a huge asset to relationships. One study found that people tend to rate this quality __35__ in their spouse. The study also found that someone who is humble is more likely to initiate a romantic relationship, perhaps because they are less likely to see themselves as "too good"for someone else. Thus,a humble partner might be your ideal partner.

Section B 段落匹配

Directions: 阅读下列段落，为每个句子选出所对应的段落。每个段落可能被选一次、多次或不被选择。

A “I used to work very hard. I love to create things, grow them and solve problems，” said Meng Li, a successful app developer in San Francisco. “I didn't really care about my mind and my body until they decided togo on strike.”

B Ms. Li said her stress led to sleeplessness. When she did sleep, she experienced “problem-solving dreams，” which left her feeling unrested when she woke up. “After I became a first-time mother, I quickly realized I was so busy caring for other people and work that I felt like I'd lost myself，” she said.

C It's a common story--one we frequently ridicule and readily dismiss, for example, by claiming that women tend to complain more than men, despite the growing sum of research that underlines the problem. Women are twice as likely to suffer from severe stress and anxiety as men, according to a 2016 study published in The Journal of Brain & Behavior. The American Psychological Association reports a gender gap year after year showing that women consistently report higher stress levels. Clearly, a stress gap exists.

D "The difference is not really news to me, as a clinical psychologist,"said Erin Joyce, a women and couples therapist in Los Angeles. "It's been well documented in extensive research over the years that prevalence rates for the majority of the anxiety disorders are higher in women than men."Some people may argue that this is merely reported data, and they say many men feel the same pressures as women in terms of fulfilling responsibilities at work and home. In other words, we're all really, really stressed.

E “The difference, however, is in the nature and scope of these responsibilities in the home environment in particular，” Dr. Joyce said. For example, the United Nations reported that women do nearly three times as much unpaid domestic work as men. The problem is, housework is often overlooked as work, eventhough it is often as laborious (or in some cases, more so) as any paid iob, As the scholar Silvia Federici put it in 1975, the unpaid nature of domestic work reinforces the assumption that "housework is not work, thus preventing women from struggling against it."

F It's not just inside the home, though. Research from Nova Southeastern University found that female managers were more likely than male managers to display "surface acting,"or forcing emotions that are not wholly felt. "They expressed optimism, calmness and sympathy even when these were not the motions that they were actually feeling,"the study said.

G Surface acting is a prime example of "emotional labor,"a concept that the writer Jess Zimmerman made familiar in a 2015 essay. The essay sparked a massive thread on the internet community blog MetaFilter. Hundreds of women spoke up about their own experience with emotional labor: the duties that are expected of them, but go unnoticed. These invisible duties become apparent only when you don't do them. Like domestic labor, emotional labor is generally dismissed and not labeled work. But research shows it can be just as exhausting as paid work. Emotional labor can lead to difficulty in sleeping and family conflict. Sure, circumstantial stress, like losing a job, may lead to these same issues. But emotional labor is not circumstantial. It's an enduring responsibility based on the socialized gender role of women.

H Like Ms. Li, many women try to manage the added stress to reach what Dr. Jovce said was an unattainable ideal. "Some professional women aim to do it all. They want to reach the top of the corporate ladder and fly like supermom,"she said. When women don't reach this ideal, they feel guilty; and even more stressed. After her own struggle with this, Ms, Li took a step back and used her experience to build Sanity & Self, a self-care app and platform for overworked women. "The realizations I had in that process helped me gain insights and ultimately got me ready to integrate self-care into my daily life."she said.

I The stress problem extends beyond mental health when vou consider the link between stress, anxiety and heart health. Worse, most of what we know about heart disease comes from studies involving men. However, "there are many reasons to think that it's different in women,"Harvard Medical School reported. For example, women are more likely to experience disturbed sleep, anxiety and unusual fatigue before a heart attack. Stress is so normalized that it is easy for women to shrug off those symptoms as simply the consequences of stress. Many women also do not experience chest pain before a heart attack the way men do, which leads to fewer women discovering problematic heart issues. Harvard reports that women are "much more likely than men to die within a year of having a heart attack"and "many women say their physicians sometimes don't even recognize the symptoms."

J The good news is, women are more likely than men to take charge of their stress and manage it, the American Psychological Association reports. The concept of self-care, at itscore, is quite simple. "The basics of adequate sleep, healthy diet and exercise are a good place to start,"Dr. Joyce said. "Support from trusted relationships is vital. This includes professional support from various health and wellness providers if stress is becoming increasingly overwhelming. "

K Disconnecting from work and home responsibilities is also obviously important. But it's much easier said than done. It is important to understand what causes your stress in the first place. "Get really specific with what's stressing you out."Ms. Li said. "We often chalk up our stress to broad experiences like work. But work stress can take many different forms. Is a colleague being disrespectful of your time? Is a boss undermining your day-to-day control over decision making? These are different causes of stress and can benefit from different kinds of self-care.

L Ideally, your spouse or partner will be supportive, rather than dismissive, of your stress. It is important to talk through these issues before they come to ahead. "Women working outside of the home should make an effort to have a conscious conversation with their partners about more equitable sharing of household and family responsibilities,"Dr. Joyce said.

Section C 阅读理解

Passage One

As many office workers adapt to remote work， cities may undergo fundamental change if offices remain under-utilized.Who will benefit if working from home becomes the norm?

Employers argue they make considerable savings on real estate when workers shift from office to homework. However， these savings result from passing costs on to workers.

Unless employees are fully compensated，this could become a variant ofparasitic（寄生的）capitalism，whereby corporate profits increasingly rely on extracting value from the public-and now personal-realm， rather than on generating new value.

Though employers are backed by a chorus of remote work advocates， others note the loneliness， reduced productivity and inefficiencies of extended remote work.

If working from home becomes permanent, employees will have to dedicate part of their private space to work. This requires purchasing desks, chairs and office equipment.

It also means having private space dedicated to work：the space must be heated， cleaned， maintained and paid for. That depends on manythings, but for purposes of illustration, I have run some estimates for Montréal. The exercise is simple but important， since it brings these costs out of the realm of speculation into the realm of meaningful discussion.

Rough calculations show that the savings made by employers when their staff works from home are of similar value to the compensation workers should receive for setting up offices at home.

What does this mean for offices in cities? One of two things may happen：Employers pass these costs onto employees.This would be a form of expropriation（侵占）， with employees absorbing production costs that have traditionally been paid by the employer. This represents a considerable transfer of value from employees to employers.

When employees are properly compensated， employers' real estate savings will be modest. If savings are modest， then the many advantages of working in offices —such as lively atmosphere，rapidity of communication，team-building and acclimatization（适应环境）of new employees-will encourage employers to shelve the idea of remote work and， like Yahoo in 2013， encourage employees to work most of the time from corporate office space.

1. What does the author say about working from home?
   - A. It will become the norm sooner or later.
   - B. It requires employees to adapt promptly.
   - C. It benefits employers at the expense of employees.
   - D. It will force cities to transform their infrastructure
2. Why do some people oppose working from home?
   - A. It discourages team spirit.
   - B. It invades employces'privacy.
   - C. It undermines traditional values.
   - D. It negatively impacts productivity.
3. Why did the author run the estimates for Montréal?
   - A. To provide convincing data for serious discussion.
   - B. To illustrate the ongoing change in working patterns.
   - C. To show the impact of remote working on productivity.
   - D. To exemplify how remote working affects the economy.
4. What can we conclude from the author's calculations?
   - A. There is no point in transferring office work to working from home.
   - B. Employees can benefit as much from remote working as their employers.
   - C. Employers'gain from remote working should goto cmployees as compensation.
   - D. Effective measures should betaken to motivate employees to setup offices at home.
5. What is the author's opinion on working from home?
   - A. It should be avoided if possible.
   - B. It is only a temporary measure.
   - C. It can reduce companies' real estate costs.
   - D. It may affect employees' corporate loyalty.

Passage Two

The human thirst for knowledge is the driving force behind our successful development as a species. But curiosity can also be dangerous， leading to setbacks or even downfalls. Given curiosity's complexity， scientists have found it hard to define.

While pinning down a definition has proven tricky，the general consensus is it's some means of information gathering. Psychologists also agree curiosity is intrinsically（内在地）motivated.

Curiosity covers such a large set of behaviors that there probably isn't any single "curiosity gene" that makes humans wonder about and explore their environment. That said, curiosity does have a genetic component. Genes and the environment interact in many complex ways to shape individuals and guide their behavior， including their curiosity.

Regardless of their genetic makeup， infants have to learn an incredible amount of information in a short time， and curiosity is one of the tools humans have found to accomplish that gigantic task.

Hundreds of studies show that infants prefer novelty. It's what motivates non-human animals, human infants and probably human adults to explore and seek out new things before growing less interested in them after continued exposure.

But curiosity often comes with a cost.

In some situations, the stakes are low and failure is a healthy part of growth. For instance, many babies are perfectly proficient crawlers, but they decide to try walking because there's more to see and do when they stand upright. But this milestone comes at a small cost. A study of 12-to 19-month-olds learning how to walk documented that these children fell down a lot. Seventeen times per hour, to be exact. But walking is faster than crawling, so this motivates expert crawlers to transition to walking.

Sometimes, however, testing out a new idea can lead to disaster. For instance, the Inuit people of the Arctic regions have created incredible modesto deal with the challenges of living in northern climates, but what we forget about are the tens of thousands of people that tried and failed to make it in those challenging landscapes.

1. What does the author say about curiosity?
   - A. It is too complex for non-scientists to understand.
   - B. It is the force that pushes human society forward.
   - C. It is a unique trait specific to the human race.
   - D. It is often the major cause for human failures.
2. What is the general understanding of curiosity?
   - A. It motivates people to scek information.
   - B. It is destined to transform human genes.
   - C. It does people more good than harm.
   - D. It underlies all human behaviors.
3. What do we learn about how genes shape people's behavior?
   - A. They determine people's way of thinking.
   - B. They account for age differences in learning.
   - C. They enable people to undertake massive tasks.
   - D. They work in conjunction with the environment.
4. What do numerous studies show about infants?
   - A. They are far more curious than adults.
   - B. They prefer to go after all that is novel.
   - C. They have different interests than adults.
   - D. They shownon-human animal behaviors.
   - E. They show non-human animal behaviors.
5. What does the example of the Inuit people of the Arctic regions illustrate?
   - A. The cost of humans' curiosity to explore.
   - B. The incredible harshness of cold weather.
   - C. The innovative ideas stemming from curiosity.
   - D. The importance of learning from past failures.

News report 1.
United Airlines has apologized for mistakenly shipping an American family's pet dog thousands of miles in the wrong direction to Japan.
The dog owners, the Lovard Tenurell dog named Buddy, took an unexpected 16-hour flight to Tokyo, following a mix up by the airline. The dog owners, family, are currently in the process of moving. They were meant to be reunited with the pet in their new home city in Texas.
But, when they arrived at the United Airlines cargo facility in the southern U.S. state, they found a strangers dog waiting in Buddy's place. Both of the dogs had been sent to the mistakenly being sent Japan instead. Buddy was given a physical checkup when he arrived at Tokyo's International Airport. The dog was then sent back to the US on a private charter jet.
I'm so glad he's alive and coming home soon said the relieved dog owner. An error occurred during the connections in Denver. We have notified our customers that their pets arrived safely.
We will arrange to return the pets to them as soon as possible, a spokesperson of United Airlines said.
Question 2. What did the spokesperson for United Airlines say they would do after the incident?
News Report 2.
Officials that read Park Zoo in Tucson, Arizona are celebrating the birth of a baby elephant.
Zoo officials say the baby was born on Monday.
It is a female, and she weighs nearly 130 kilograms.
Samba, her mother, is a 30-year-old African elephant.
The pregnancy lasted 22 months.
Officials describe the baby elephant as healthy, standing, and nursing.
The baby hasn't been given a name yet.
Samba has given birth before.
Zoo officials said during this pregnancy, she was closely monitored through physical exams and blood tests. Dr. Sue Tagelsky is the zoos director of zoological operations. She said the elephant's birth went smoothly and that there were no complications. The new baby expands the zoos elephant herd to six. That includes the baby's parents, a sister, a brother, and an adult female.
Question three and four are based on the news report you have just heard.
Question 3. What do we learn about the mother elephant's
News Report 3
Three years ago, a couple was enjoying a meal at a beach restaurant.
The restaurant was built on a wooden structure above the sea water.
During the meal, the man's wedding ring slipped off his finger.
It fell through the wooden floorboards apparently lost forever.
Recently, the restaurant manager Ryan Kravoy decided to replace the wooden deck, and he found an old gold coin, some $100 bills, and a silver wedding ring while replacing the deck.
The restaurant's waitress Sasha Formeca posted a picture of the ring on Facebook.
The posts were shared about 5,000 times.
Three days later, the happy wife called to claim the ring. She even texted pictures of her and her husband eating there in 2017 as proof. The restaurant mailed the ring back to the happy couple. Meanwhile, Krewoy discovered that the gold coin was very rare. It was from 1855 and worth as much as $2,000.
Questions 5-7 are based on the news report you have just heard.
Question 5.
What do we learn about the restaurant?
Question 6.
What did the restaurant manager decide to do recently?
Question 7. What did the waitress do about the recovered ring?

After you hear a question, you must choose the best answer from the four choices,
March A, B, C, and D. Then mark the corresponding letter on answer sheet 1 with a single line

I can't believe that duck hunting is still legal in so many parts of the world.
The scientific evidence from countries like Australia, Canada and the USA clearly indicates a decline in the bird's numbers.
But can anyone be sure if the decline is really caused by the Humting or by climate change?
It's caused by both, in fact.
We see more droughts in countries like Australia.
Ducks are birds that feed and breed in areas where there is a lot of water.
But their habitats have been shrinking in recent decades because of the droughts.
And I guess, with fewer places to inhabit, they concentrate in great numbers in few areas.
Which surely makes them easier targets for the hunters.
It does. My grandfather was a duck hunter. He told me hunting ducks and geese began in the 19th century.
They were an easily found and politically available food source in farming areas, especially for poor immigrants.
What did they use for hunting during that period?
They used new types of guns and birds could easily be shot down in flight, and in such great numbers that commercial hunting of ducks and geese became an industry.
Yet there's no commercial farming of these birds nowadays.
Their meat is hardly eaten in western countries.
No, duck hunting seemingly exists as the continuation of a tradition.
Wild ducks have never been popular with farmers like my grandfather anyway,
Because they sometimes destroy crops.
In fact, farmers use to poison them in large numbers.
That somehow doesn't surprise me.
Nobody places much value on the lives of these poor birds or on their meat.
Questions A-211 are based on the conversation you have just heard.
Question 8.
What does the woman find unbelievable?
Question 9. What does the woman say has caused the shrinking of ducks' habitats in Australia?
Question 10. Why is there no commercial farming of ducks and geese in western countries?
Question 11. What does the woman say about farmers in her grandfather's time.
Conversation 2
Ok, Miss Bright, I finished calculating.
I estimate you have between 210 and 240 square meters of walls and ceiling.
So, how much for the paint job cost?
That would depend on the quality of paint you choose.
We carry two brands.
One cost 60 cents every square meter and the other 90 cents.
The second is guaranteed to look great for about 10 years, whereas the cheaper one will start to dull after around 6 or 7 years.
In that case, we would prefer the more expensive option.
Alright then, so including labor costs, taxes and everything, this job would come to $3,000.
Hmm, to be perfectly honest, that's more than I expected.
Please bear in mind that the price includes moving all the furniture and the whole task would take two days.
Really? Why?
Well, we can't paint the walls without clearing all the furniture first, so every time we paint a room,
We first have to move the furniture to another room.
So that takes more time.
Plus it requires two people, which works out more expensive.
I see.
But does that mean I could not live here in my own house during those two days?
That is correct.
Oh well.
That changes everything I'm afraid.
I would have to stay with a friend or check into a hotel.
I hadn't considered any of that.
I'm starting to realize that painting my house is far more troublesome than I had anticipated.
This is usually the case. Most of our clients go through the same realization.
I see.
You have my number. Please feel free to call me for any further questions.
Thank you.

Section C, directions. In this section, you will hear three passages. At the end of each passage, you will hear three or four questions.
Both the passage and the questions will be spoken only once. After you hear a question, you must choose the best answer from the four choices, marked A, B, C and D.
Then mark the corresponding letter on answer sheet 1 with a single line through the center.
Passage 1.
Homework is an important part of schooling, but the purposes of giving children homework will change as they grow older.
At the primary level, the main aim is to cultivate good habits, like learning to plan, and exercising self-discipline.
During the secondary school years, extending what is learned at school is positively related to academic achievement, so the content of homework becomes more important.
So how can you help your child do their best?
Creating an ideal working environment will make it easier for them to get down to their assignments quickly.
Make sure it's free of distractions, and for primary school children at least, somewhere near you so you can answer questions and offer encouragement. You probably have to help young good children plan their session, but it's important that by the end of primary school it's second nature. Get them to tell you everything they have to do then encourage them to establish an order in which they do work. When they're several different assignments, make sure they begin with one they enjoy, so it seems easy to get started. It's best to take on the most difficult task second. Once they're settled, but before they get tired.
If older children have more than an hour of homework, encourage them to schedule a short break to stretch. If you encourage them to tell you what they've learned, they'll absorb the information more deeply and remember it more readily.
Question 17. What does the passage suggest parents do to help their children?
Question 18. What should children do to deal with multiple assignments?
Passage 2. Workers at Mexican oil company will receive a health incentive of almost $300 a year if they meet certain body weight standards. To qualify for the bonus, they must maintain and I healthy weight. For those who are overweight or obese, they can receive the bonus if they reduce their weight by 10% during the year. Some applaud the policy as fair, because it rewards both individuals who maintain a healthy weight and those who are working towards achieving it. But critics say the policy contradicts recommendations by many health experts.
Who warn that a person's weight is influenced by genetic and environmental factors.
That means weight can be hard for individuals to control, which makes the bonus unfair.
Some experts say the policy is inconsistent with the science of what we know about body weight regulation.
These experts argue that focusing on weight is the wrong approach.
A more productive method of encouraging health among employees is to promote healthy behaviors.
For example, companies can give workers gym memberships or encourage participation in lectures on healthy eating and living.
They can also reduce sweets and provide healthier stacks in the office and healthier meals at the company canteen.
Or they can give employees more time during their lunch break to exercise.
These are much better and much more productive ways for companies to move forward on the employees well-being.
Question 19-21 A based on the passage you have just heard.
Question 19 Who will qualify for the bonus in Mexican oil company?
Question 20. What do critics think of Mexican oil companies bonus policy?
Question 21. What do experts propose companies do about workers well being?
Passage 3.
Compatuous of war that the British government is not doing enough to prevent left-handed pupils from falling behind their peers.
They claim that thousands of children are still being penalized for being left-handed.
This is due to a lack of action from ministers who failed to take any meaningful action for years.
It is feared that a failure to address early year challenges such as poor handwriting needs to much more serious problems down the line with these pupils facing reduced career prospects.
Studies and recent years show that left had children on more likely to suffer with learning difficulties and their schools are lower on IQ tests.
Campaigners feel it's strange that children in British schools are penalised because they haven't been left handed. They don't understand why successive governments have failed to act on this. They want the Department of Education to record which children are left handed and what their educational attainments are. Since they make up some 10% of population. In early year education, left-handed children are struggling and making a mess of their handwriting. Educators don't know how to deal with this. In many cases, there's no active help and a lack of teacher training. Campaigners point out that a high percentage of the prison population is left-handed. They say that these prison numbers are unusually high and ask why it is the case.
Questions 22 to 25 are based on the passage you have just heard.
Question 22. Why are some people criticizing the British government?
Question 23. What do studies in recent years show about left-handed children?
Question 24. What do the campaigners demand? The Department of Education do.
Question 25. What do the campaigners want to know about left-handed prisoners?
